it This Week

There will be great pressure from all ndes to end the struggle over the senator ship this week. The rapid approach of ho weather, business engagements long de ferred, and the feeling that the time has come when the centest ought to be ended, all combine to influence members forcibly toward decisive action. It is felt by all, also, that the fourth of July should be made the limit of the conof July should be made the limit of the con-test, and that if permitted to be prolonged beyond that day no one can foretell its duration. Conkling's supporters are not yet unanimously in favor of adjourning the legislature. Such as are not are watching legislature. Such as are not are watching eagerly the action of the grand jury of Albany county on the charge preferred against Senator Sessions by Assemblyman Bradley. They hope that Sessions will be indicted, and that, as a result of the indictment, Depew's supporters may be frightened away from him, and thus the most formidable of Conkling's opponents will be withdrawn. Upon Depew's withdrawnal they would hope either to elect Mr. Conkling, or two Conkling men as senators, who would be his humble tools at Washington in a war upon the administration. Pending decision by the grand jury they are opposed to adthe grand jury they are opposed to adjournment, hoping, as had been said, to regain, through a decision, all the influence they have lost in the legislature the past month. The grand jury was in session to-day, and there were rumors that it had found some six or seven indictments on the charge of bribery. At nightfall, how-ever, it was learned that the rumor was only true so far as the statement that six indictments had been found. The indictments were given to the district attorney in a sealed envelope. Against whom they are directed is not yet known, persons not in the least connected with the bribery case may be victims. When ex-Senators Conkling and Platt arrived here, to-night, from New York, there was no one at the depot waiting for them, and as they stood among the throng of persons before the clerk's desk, in the Delavan house, they were rudely hustled by their fellow-travelers. Finally disengaging themselves from the crowd, they walked up the main stairway of the hotel, alone, two as dispirited looking and weary men as one would see in many a day. They were not greeted by a single person while standing in the crowded hotel corridor. Conkling seemed especially careworn.

No great change is expected in voting to-morrow. Owing to the storm fewer members arrived to-n ght than expected. A rather small attendance is inevitable at the joint convention. It is thought that Wednesday will be the decisive day of the week. Senator Robertson is using all his offnence to elect senators this week Some change in the situation as to the result o his efforts may be looked for with considerable trust. It is generally anticipated that if the administration party is success ful in its present plans an administration and a stalwart senator will be elected by the end of the week.

The Anonymous Letter Scoundrel. The Amonymous Letter Scoundrel. PHILADELPHIA, June 28.—An imitation Fairfax Williamson, who harrassed Rev. Dr. Dix, of Trinity church, New York, has appeared here in the bosom of a highly aristocratic Protestant Episcopal church, St. Marks, and has written forty letters to the rector, Rev. Dr. Nicholson, and eleven members of his flock all libellous and scandalous in their patter. The first letter was received their nature. The first letter was received two weeks ago last Friday and alleged a criminal intimacy between two prominent members of the church. Dr. Nicholson called upon the post master and asked the co-operation of the department to catch the writer. The postmaster placed the case in charge of officer Barrett and a careful watch was instituted for ten days, at the end of which time the writing and supposed authorship of letters was fastened upon an insane person formerly an attendant of the church. In view of the respectability of the alleged culprit's family and his recognized diseased mental condition, the rector, postmaster and detective unite in withholding his name for the present. withholding his name for the present. Visits to several of the prominent verymen and one of the rector's assistants disclosed the fact that they have not been let into the secret of authorship. One of these gentlemen, however, left it to be inferred that more than one person was certainly connected with the offense. It was ascertained that a woman's work was noticeable in several of the letters.

LONDON, June 28.—In view of the reassembling of the monetary conference, Thursday next, the Times, in its financial article, while conceding that as an act of courtesy to France and the United States, the support to the courtesy to the co it was proper to accept their invitation to send delegates to the conference, advices the withdrawal of English representatives in that body as there is no expectation in any case of England's agreeing to anything which will affect the adhesion to the single gold standard. The writer declares the basis of the conference is a fundamentally expectation of the function ally erroneous conception of the functions of government in regard to metallic currency, and is opposed to the traditional principles of the English currency system, and he views the presence of English delegates in the congress as most unfortunate and calculated to injure the reputation of the English government. He seeks to show that the functions of government in dealing with metallic currency is simply to guarantee its weight and fineness, following the wishes of its subjects in the selec-tion of the metal and in ne way offering to regulate the supply of metal itself.

of the reform league, is dead.

[Edmund Beales was born in a suburb of Cambridge, July 3, 1803. His father was Mr. Samuel Pickering Beales, a merchant and political reformer. He was educated at Bury St. Edmund's grammar school, and at Eaton, and then at Trinity college, Cambridge, where he was a leading member of the Union debating society with Austin, Macaulay, Cockbura, Lytton and others. He afterwards took a prominent part in foreign politics particularly interesting bimself in Polish affairs. In 1864 he came prominently before the people, when he defended the right of the people to meet on Primrose hill and a conflict with the authorities occurred. In the same year he was prominent in the political agitation in connecprominent in the political agitation in connection with the trade societies, manhood suffrage and the ballot. In the agitation which preceded the passage of Disraeli's reform bill of 1867, Mr Beales, as president of the reform league, took a leading part. He resigned that position in 1869, and the league was dissolved. Since 1870 he has been judge for the county court circuit, comprising Cambridgeshire, the 1sle of Ely, Huntingdonshire, and a part of Bedfordshire and Essex.

THE DAILY NEWS.

TUESDAY, JUNE 28, 1881.

ONE Kentucky professor discovered this comet last autumn. It seems impossible to find the man who discovered it first, so that prize had better be given to the man who did net.

THE Cornell crew at Henley gets the worst place in the race, and has two of the strongest crews to pull against; so it is quite possible that Cornell will get all it wants of the Henley regatta.

THERE seems to be an impression at Albany that senators will be elected this week. It is high time. The republicans should unite upon two men-say. Wheeler and Depew, are cast the total of their ballots for them. Then if the Conklingites choose to still obstruct the election, let them. Henceforth they will be outside of the republican party, body, boots and baggage, and can be treated as the enemy.

PITNEY will not confess. Then away with him to the donjon keep. Pitney thinks he would be a fool to confess. He certainly is a knave, unconfessed as matters stand. There is an impression abroad-possibly a wrong one that something is smothered as to that treasury ring; that, perhaps, in order to shield rascals of high degree, truth is being crushed to the earth, and the people want to see her rise again. If the department is not able to grapple with the situation, congress, we trust, will be.

THE half-holiday movement among the workingmen east, manifests itself by sporadic, and for the most part meffectual strikes. More could be done to arrive at hard pan in this matter by universal consultation for finality of action than by disjointed strikes. There are some industries which by their nature render a half-holiday impossible; evening newspapers, for instance. There are others which can perhaps as well suspend at noon on Saturday, as at four o'clock. It seems chiefly necessary that they shall "all do it," so that a universal custom need work no individual harm.

- GRISCOM, the Chicago starvationist, has but a week to go to equal Tanner. The probabilities are strong that he will do it. If he does, his success will largely increase the possibility that almost any body can starve a lenten term through on water. If there is no humbug-and there appears to be none-these experiments will settle a nutritive value for water that neither science nor empiricism has ever allowed it. The destruction of tissue is retarded, the weight less reduced than would have been supposed, the functions preserved in normal condition, the health not otherwise affected ti an by physical weakness. To continue this condition forty days on a liquid which, indispensable to life as it is, has no flesh making or flesh restoring quality, and no blood healing power, is something that physiological science will have to take into account hereafter. Three or four such cases and we have had a half dozen closely approaching it-will spoil a "forty day fast" for a show. Griscom has attracted little attention abread and not much at home. The next public starvationist at twenty-five cents a head will be no curiosity, and it won't pay him to "hire a hall." As a show very little will spoil it. As a scientific development it will very probably be associated with Alexis St. Martin's open stemach, and the uncapped brain of a British soldier, who was perfectly trephined by a piece of shell.

DURING this warm weather there should be more care taken as to certain things which may possibly produce nausea more easily than in cool weather. For instance, the following piece of information from Long Branch seems just now extremely

Just before the president's departure, General Grant rode by on his way to the New York train, receiving a salute from the president's eleven-year-old son, who was playing in the road with two other boys, the general returning the salutation.

It might not be so sickening in cooler weather perhaps, but we are inclined to think a health'y American would be hardly able to "stomach" it at any time. In the name of snobbery, how long is such disgusting stuff as this to be placed under the nose of a self respecting people? The idea of an assinine telegraph operator sending all over this three-thousand-mile continent that a little eleven-year-old snuffle-nosed boy making mud pies in the road "with two other boys," "saluted" General Grant, who "returned the salutation." Will this court fool please tell a waiting nation how many mud pies Master Garfield made yesterday, and whether he washed his hands when he got through; and when he gets hold of some Jersey farmer's green apples, don't fail to telegraph a bulletin of it, for the whole nation wants to get ready to have the WHAT is there in the air, or the food, or the clothing, or the preaching, or the

schooling, or the geographical situation, or any physical or moral condition of St. Louis, that makes the state laws so effective against criminal vices? The Missouri legislature last winter passed a law making it a felony to keep a gambling house, and on last Saturday night at 12 o'clock it went into operation. Every gambling house was closed at once, Now we of Indianapolis have had a state law for sixty years or more making it a misdemeanor either to gamble or keep or rent a house for gambling, with a fine of not less than $50 nor more than $500 for each offense; while "professional gambling" and keeping a gambling appara tus are made a felony with not less than one ner more than five years in the penitentiary, and a period of disfranchisement; or not less than three nor more than six months in jail, with disfranchisement for a time fixed by the court. Part of this law is enforced occasionally, in a way to worry the gentlemen of "nigritudinous legs," as Saxe calls them, considerably, but part of it has never been enforced in a solitary case. No man or woman has ever been punished-so far as we can remember-for renting a room for gambling, and no professional gambler has ever been sent to the penitentiary, nor, we think, ever brought to trial on a charge of felony. Yet the town is full of professional gamblers, and has been ever since the famous "committee of thirteen." There has not probably been a single night in thirty years that a gambling hell hasn't been open for devotees and victims somewhere in the city, the keeper of which was amenable to the felony act. The state law puts an instant stop to such operations in St. Louis. It is done between midnight and day. It has not been done in Indianapolis in sixty years of law and thirty years of constant opportunity. St. Louis is but a few hundreds of miles from here, in a latitude not materially different from ours. in much the same geologic and climatic conditions, with much the same sort of population, with no greatly dissimilar proportions of churches and schools, with the same grade of material for municipal legislators and executives, and vet this immensity of difference in the effectiveness of a state law. Have we no Herbert Spencer, Lecky or Buckle to take this perplexing problem of morals and civilization in hand

ONE is at a loss whether most to be charmed at the frankness or disgusted with the depravity shown by the police board in the interviews in yesterday's News. "Naked, and not ashamed," is the natural comment upon their utterances. The three gentlemen of the board, Messrs. Stout, Brundage and Pearson, it will be noticed, agree that no complaint has been made (except by The News, the latter two said). We should like to ask these gentlemen what they were elected for? Do they not take oaths to execute the law, and are they not paid by the tax-payers for serving? The way in which a law-abiding community protects itself is to put men in office to look after its offenders. These three graces airily say, "Nobody has complained." That is, having entrusted their interests to them, people don't go to work and attend to these interests themselves A fine proposition, truly! Councilma Stout was, reperhaps, the most frank of the three. He had seen the saloons open on Sunday, but had never been inside and saw drinking there. He declined to say whether or not the saloon keepers were given the privilege of violating the law for their services in the election. This is creditable to Mr. Stout. We assume that he would not tell an untruth about this, and did not want to tell the truth, therefore he answered nothing. Every body else can answer. Prophecy has been fulfilled. The saloon interests worked for Grubbs and the ticket, and immunity from interference was what they got for it. It has been since the election as it was prophesied before the election it would be, Mr. Stout is in favor of doing all that is possible to enforce the law; at least he wants to try and have the front doors closed. Indeed! Wouldn't he like to have a coat of white-wash spread over them?

Councilman Brundage didn't know offic ially or personally of any Sunday liquor selling, but further on he says some of the saloon keepers told him they would be will-close on Sunday if all Mr. Brundage we presume did not know what those saloon keepers meant when they talked so. He declined to say whether he was in favor of enforcing the law or not! Mr. Pearson gives us the refreshing information that the board had been petitioned by leading Washington street merchants to allow the saleons to be kept open on Sunday. Actually! Think of it! And Mr. Pearson can tell us this with no more apparent sense of shame than if they had been solicited to join in burglary. Imagine a board of city authorities receiving petitions to transgress the law which they are sworn to execute, and not hurling the insult in the face of the men who would dare give it! But they do not seem sensible of their shame. Mr. Pearson talks of it actually as a justification. Then if saloons are shut a large number of commercial travelers will not come here for their Sunday sprees! Deplorable loss! How can the city ever survive it? "A large class of our citizens, par ticularly the Germans, are in favor of keeping the saloons open." If Mr. Pearson will go through the county jail and take a vote, he will find a unanimous opinion that the laws against theft are irksome and should be repealed. Would he let that opinion guide him? The cases are analagous. It is none of Mr. Pearson's business-using the phrase in its true meaning-what any class of citizens want; nor is it any of his concern whether the enforcement of this law would end Sunday drunkenness or not. He and his confreres are put in office to execute the law, and they have nothing further to do with it. We trust they see, as the people do, how low they have fallen when they can be the recipients of petitions to break their oaths of office, and are to hold meetings to consider whether they shall continue to violate the law which they are elected to execute.

CURRENT COMMENT.

To have the austere Boutwell come out and say that Grant made a mistake in his harrangue the other day about senatorial courtesy, as illustrated by the Simmons case, is pretty hard upon the great American chatterer. Boutwell says he both labored to prevent Simmons's appointment and voted against his confirmation in the extra session of the senate, and was roundly criticised by General Butler because he did. Now, who was it in this case that was, as Shakespeare says, "Got him glass eyes, and like a scurvy politician has seemed to see the things which are not?"

The New York Herald has ceased vindicating Conkling, and is now reconstructing the British empire, putting it under an imperial confederation by the recognition of the inhabitants of the Englishspeaking provinces and colonies of the whole empire as equal-with an equal representation in parliament. The Herald can "talk about the weather" much better than any thing else.

It is given out that Grant has been misrepresented. He told Jim. Young the other day, that he was going to avoid newspaper men hereauer; that most of the matter recently published as interviews with him never took place. Grant isn't the first man who, confronted with cold type, was aghast at his babble-but no matter. Is it probable, however, that an American newspaper has in its employ a reporter who has such crude notions as were expressed in those interviews-but no matter for that. Grant says he has none but the friendliest feelings for Garfield. He differs decidedly with him in the Conkling-Robertson matter, but he does not propose to allow this difference to alter their social relations. So be it. Let the sphinx put a sticking plaster over his mouth. A New York wood-carver says that Vanderbilt has thirty of the best woodcarvers to be found in Europe at work upon the wood in his new house. The carver said also that at this time the people of this country were spending more money on wood decoration in household interior than any nation in the world, and that, at the rate we are proceeding, in twenty years we would have the most artistic household interiors in the world, equal to what England has been laboring at for centuries.

Professor Simon Newcomb on the Come [New York Tribune.]
"It must have passed very near between the earth and the sun about a week or ten days ago. It is this peculiarity of its motion which has rendered its discovery so difficult, although it has really been in our sky for more than a month. It did not rise until after sunrise, and it noon before the sun did, so it was hidden from view. As soon, however, as it got north, of the sun it began to rise a little be-fore the sun and set a little after. At length it got so far north that it was visible before sunrise and from the present time it will be visible after sunset.

We can now speak with some confidence of its future motion. It is undoubtedly re-ceding both from the earth and from the un, and will therefore grow fainter every day until it disappears from view. Mean-while it will continue its present course almost directly for the north pole. At pres ent it is moving about two degrees a this will, of course, diminish, and after July 5 be less than one degree a day. After Monday next it will be visible all night. How long it will have a visible tail it is impossible to say, but probably for not more than two weeks. It will, however, be visible in the telescope for a long time-probably for several months.

Olive was sitting in his piazza and saw the bolt at the time it struck. He says it seemed like a solid ball of fire as large as a man's head, and for an instant hovered over the top of the tree. Then it descended, and, with a deafening erash, the monarch of the forest droppe to pieces.

A sentinel angel, sitting high in glory, Heard this shrill wail ring out from purgatory "Have mercy, mighty angel. Hear my story. "I loved, and blind with passionate love, I fell; Love brought me down to death, and death to hell; For God is just, and death for sin is well.

"I do not rage against His high decree; Nor, for myself do ask that grace shall be; But for my love on earth who mourns for me! "Great Spirit, let me see my love again, And comfort him one hour, I were fain To pay a thousand years of fire and pain." Then spake the sentinel angel: "Nay, repent This wild vow; see the dial fingers bent Down to the last hour of your punishment." But still she wailed: "I pray you, let me go! I cannot rise to peace and leave him so; Oh! let me soothe him in his bitter woe!"

Upon looking through an illustrated article in the July Scribner describing the armory of the New York 7th regiment, we were struck with the just-as-it-should-be appearance of the structure, and the eternal fitness of its luxurious elegance—its costly and inviting asset wheir wich decorated. costly and inviting easy chairs, rich decor ations, oriental screens, massive and costly mahogany beokcases, and a few hundred thousand dollars' worth of other magnifi cence. It was a happy thought to provide all these comforts and luxuries for the American soldier, and thus inure him to hardships of the battlefield. Hundreds of militiamen who rushed to the tented field militiamen who rushed to the tented field in 1861 felt like a whale out of its element when they found mahogany bookcases, velvet carpets, costly lounges, and other splendors to which they had not been accustumed to at home, and the hardships occasioned thereby was greatly augmented. New, in time of peace our soldiers prepare for unpleasantness by furnishing their arm-ories in a style of oriental grandeur, and thus familiarize themselves with the art of war, as it were. OUININE. How Its Use is Abused in this Country.

For many years I have felt it my duty as a physician to protest against the growing abuse of quinine, and to warn the public against its dangers. I have so far refrained because I feared the public and the medical profession might think I was unmedical profession might think I was unduly prejudiced on account of my connection with the homeopathic school of medicine. But let me say that I am not one of those who reject the use of quinine. On the contrary, I consider it a valuable and useful drug. It is the abuse of it, and not its legitimate use, that I protest against.
For the last five years, especially, its abuse
by the profession and the laity has yearly assumed dangerous proportions. It is the medical fashion of the day, as much so as was the use of antimony and mercury during the last century. This fashion is rapidly extending to an extreme. cury during the last century. This fash-ion is rapidly extending to an extreme which must sooner or later result in a re-action which will be tremendons, just as all reactions from abuse are. The reaction against antimony and mercury has nearly hanished them from practice, and really excluded them when they ought to be used So it will be with quinine. It ought to be known that quinine is as much a poison in over-doses as arsenic. In massive doses it will cause all the phenomena of collapse, pernicious congestions and serious lesions of the brain. In agues it often substitutes its own poisonous effects for that of the disease, and the ignorant physician goes on giving the drug without recognizing the fact. It often precipitates attacks of apoplexy, mania and insanity, which milder treatment could ward off. The immense doses which are given in cerebro-spinal fe vers often drag the patient to a rapidly fa-tal end. Dr. W. A. Hammond, in a private letter to the writer, declares it is a poten cause of congestion of the brain and should be used with great caution. The medical superintendent of one of the insane asylums in this state declared to a friend of mine that, 'in a large proportion of the insane which came under his care, that condition had been either caused or aggracondition had been either caused or aggravated by the improper use of quinine. In my own personal experience I can point to hundreds of persons who have been irreparably injured by this drug. One notorious irregular practitioner gives it in enormous doses for nearly every complaint; and not content with its internal use, orders it rubbed into the skin, mixed with leard by the surper. The victims of this lard, by the cunce. The victims of this unwarranted treatment can be numbered by hundreds, and its deleterious effects will follow them for years. There is a worse aspect, however, than its occasional abuse. I allude to its continued use. When a person has been subjected to its abuse for a length of time he can not leave it off; he becomes a confirmed quinine eater, and in the end his condition becomes as deplora-ble as that of an opium eater. I have at this time ventured on this protest because I find that the regular profession are be-ginning to wake up to the knowledge of the abuse of quinine, and are bold enough to denounce it.

CITY NEWS.

Willis Vajen has been granted a patent Charles H. Wiles and Sophia Hillman were yesterday adjudged insaue.

A gang of burglars is at work vigorously in the city. Attempts at daylight robberies are particularly frequent. Adjutant General Carnahan has been invited to deliver an address at the state sol-diers' encampment at Lincoln, Neb., in

Mrs. Eliza Cain, widow of the late Captain John Cain, formerly postmaster here, died this morning in her sixty-eighth year. She was born in Cincinnati, and her maiden name was Jennison.

Charles and Alvin Benz, alleged counter-feiters, who have been in jail here for some time, were last night taken to the Corydon jail by order of Judge Gresham, as they can not be tried until November.

In the midst of these piping times of peace, the soldiery of Indiana have received tidings of an inter-state prize military drill to be held at the Kansas state fair in September next, $1,000 being offered to the victors. to the victors.

A large attendance of the young was present last evening at the Sixth Presbyterian church, and a solemn, searching sermon was delivered. This evening Dr. Graves will preach about the "Hand Writing on the Wall." On Friday, the "Unpardonable Sin."

The philosopher at the state building is a traveler withal, and occasionally amuses members of his household with accounts of his adventures. Last night he was entertaining his six-year-old daughter with the wonders of Westminster abbey. "Why," said he, "people are buried in the abbey who died four hundred years ago." she mused a moment, as if taking in the magnitude of the proposition, and then exclaimed, "Hum, I should think they would smell bad by this time!"

The comet has moved 10° towards the The comet has moved 10° towards the pole since Saturday morning, and is now within about 30° of it, and consequently above the horizon. The nucleus at the lowest last night, when directly under the pole, was 10° above the horizon. The tail could be distinctly discerned for 10°, and faintly for 15°, or half the distance to the pole star. The nucleus to the eye was as a garge hyllight and conspicuous as a star of large, brilliant and conspicuous as a star of the first magnitude. The apparent increase of the tail and brightness of the nucleus would indicate that it is still approaching would indicate that it is still approaching the sun, and is not past its perihelion, though it may be moving away from us. Prof. Klein, of Kentucky, claims that he has "watched" and "marked" this very comet since last September, and written about it, too, and he believes the earth passed through its tail and at the vapors of it, or caused by it, produced the unusual rain fall recently. He also believes that this same water-working appendage caused "the great snow storm about the lakes early last fall." If it caused both, the earth must have been wrapped up in that tail about half a year which looks a little incredible to the unscientific intellect, considering the invarscientific intellect, considering the invar-ibly enormous speed of comets within the ibly enormous speed of comets within the earth's distance from the sun. Prof. Draper has photographed it, in seventeen minutes of exposure, while he has photographed Jupeter and Capella in one and two seconds, showing an enormous interirity of light in the comet, as large and brilliant as it appears. But a large part of this difference is doubtless due to the greater abundance of "activic," or chemical rays in the planetary and stellar light,

The Churches. Roberts Park church, during these last moments of the revival services, is crowd-ed to overflowing nightly. Last evening the congregation filled the church and to a the congregation filled the church and to a stranger it would have appeared that the revival was at its height. After a short address by Rev. Mr. Harrison, fifty-nine penitents knelt at the altar, nineteen of whom were converted, making a total of 1,204 to date. When the number 1,200 was reported there was a spontaneous outburst of praise. There will be the usual revival service this evening.

service this evening. The meeting at the Sixth Presbyterian church last evening, led by Rev. A. P. Graves was so notable for the fervor of the religious interest manifested that great results from the work seem assured. Graves preached from the text "The har vest is past, the summer is ended and we are not saved." At the close of the preacher's appeal nearly the whole congregation

The Millers' Association.

At a meeting of the millers' state association yesterday afternoon the treasurer's statement showed $1,230 collected, and $854.65 disbursed; leaving a balance of $375.35 in the treasury. The state association is indebted to the national association tion is indebted to the national association in the sum of $3,030 for delinquent dues, and it was ordered that drafts should be drawn on the delinquents for the respective amounts, and if at the end of sixty days these drafts were not paid the names, of such delinquents should be dropped from the rells of the association. from the rells of the association. The annual election of officers resulted as follows:

President—John R. Callender, Vincennes, Vice president—John A. Thomas, Edinburg, Secretary and treasurer—R. Thomas, Colum-

Executive committee—R. L. Thompson, Nicholas Ellis and Joseph Pollock. The remainder of the session was taken up with hearing reports of the wheat crop throughout the state. From these it would seem that not more than half an average crop will be realized this year.

Fire Department Accounts. Last Friday's News contained an article headed "Alleged loose financiering," in which was said, "It is stated that the five department's annual report does not exactly show the amount of the expenses of that department for the year." Now Mr. Editor, we would respectfully ask who makes these statements? Farther on you say: "It appears that no return is made to the city treasurer of amounts received by the fire department, etc." Is the chief of the fire department responsible to the city treasurer? We think not. We of the rank and file of the department are responsible to the chief only. Our chief to the fire board and the city council. The chief's annual report, submitted to the council some weeks since, and now in the hands of the printer, contains an itemized report of all receipts and expenditures of the department for the past year. We have had a look at said cash account, and find on the credit side, such items as, 1 feet all heart 10th 11 to To the Editor of The Indianapolis News. the department for the past year. We have had a look at said cash account, and find on the credit side, such items as, 1 foot old hose 10c, old rags 10c, etc. On the debtor side, postage on samples of hose 10c, tell 10c, etc. Total amount of receipts, $1,026,14. Expenditures, $809,25. Such itemized report were never kept before, and it is, indeed, a bad precedent for those who come here after calculating the perquisites. Under the present management a complete fecord is kept of all transactions. Not only this, but each foreman is made responsible for the expenditures of his respective company, and comparative statements are made showing the particular cost of running each company, how much of each article consumed, and for what? It almost makes one sigh for the good old halcyon days when we would use all we could get, and get all we could. Go fishing, go hunting, own our own horses and feed them out of the city's feed; go down town two at a time, get on a spree and stay that way as long as we liked. Getting into a drunken brawl the chief would help us out. We got just as much praise then as we do now, and much better wages. What does it signify if, in the past year, we have had a larger number wondrous kind. We are paid for it, are we? "Put none but Americans on guard to-night." Why were they paid better? ONE OF THE BOYS.

The New Revision on Conversion. To the Editor of The Indianapolis News: An article on this subject was in a late number of The News. The author, we think, has done singular injustice to the scholars who have spent so much labor on the work. The word which they have substituted for the former term, precisely the synonym of the same—"conversion," is the Latinized form, and "turn" is the Saxon.

The revisers have, in their best judgment, decided to use the mother Saxon of the English speaking world, wherever it could

The reader will find this rule followed even in the changes of Hebrew and Greek proper names. The bible is the book preeminently for the people. It is intended for those who have plain and ordinary en-dowments of mind and heart, so that the word of God, like His works, are for the million. It demands no learning for the million. It demands no learning for the people to learn to speak, breathe or see by the sunlight. So plain is the revealed will of the Creator. No book ever written admits of so transparent a translation, into any of one hundred and forty dialects already enriched by this priceless gift.

Besides Mr. Matthews does injustice to the church of the bible. As to conversion being a popular error—it is the very mode of expressing that truth held by the 25,000,000 of christian martgrs for the last 2,000 years. King James's version no more origin—years. King James's version no more originated it, than that of the deity of Christ. The gradual change of "step by step" implies plainly, that the person is, during the plies plainly, that the person is, during the stages of the change, neither in the kingdom of heaven, nor in an opposite state. If he should die during that gradual change, he would be neither qualined for the one place or the other.

Surely the revisers had no such conceivable idea in their change of terms. They left the Greek tact as they found it. "He that is not for me is against me" said our

A Vandal's Act.

To the Editor of The Indianapolis News: I would like to ask what right the city has to destroy property which it compels the citizens to acquire? Sometime ago the city government passed an ordinance compelling the owners of property to adorn the sidewalks of the same with shade trees. The writer was put to considerable trouble and expense in complying with this ordinance. He employed a farmer to procure trees for him with great care from the woods, spent much time and labor in attending, watering and protesting them with tree-guards, replanting no less than three times those that failed to grow, until successful at last; he rejoiced in the possession of trees which were a source of session of trees which were a source of pride and pleasure. Judge then of his indignation and disgust on returning from his daily labors to find instead of his beautiful trees, only ragged and unsightly stumps. In his absence, some ignorant and senseless bungler from the fire department had come and hacked and split off, and left their withered tops hanging. Being of a quick and choleric disposition, he thinks it fortunate for the devastator that he was not at home, else he might have treated him to the contents of a shot-gun. By session of trees which were a source of him to the contents of a shot-gun. By what authority was this done? What encouragement is there in it for citizens to attempt to beautify their homes? If the city can compel the citizens to plant shade trees, and then arrogate to itself the right to keep them in order, has a citizen not the right to demand that only competent and careful persons shall be sent to trim them? INDIGNANT CITIZEN,

The Lawyer's Boy.

[Detroit Free Press.]
Anybody who thinks that the boy em-ployed around a lawyer's office has nothing ployed around a lawyer's office has nothing to do but empty the paper basket, run to the post office, sweep the room and read the jokes of Blackstone, is grandly mistaken. A boy—that is, a prize of a boy, and one who will eventually become a great lawyer himself—has a heap on his mind, and no time for slung-shots or tops. Yesterday while a Detroit lawyer was in court, with his boy in charge of the office, a newspaper man who was nunting through the Mosfat block stumbled upon the young attorney, and was received with: and was received with:

"Come right in. The papers in your case are ready to be signed." "Application for divorce."

it I'm not the man." "Ain't you? Well, you look like him. Let's see! Are you the defendant in the Jones vs. Brown case of trespass? If so, I am to tell you that the case is put over until next Saturday, at the same hour in the afternoon." "No, I am not the Brown."

"Well, that's all right. Let's see again? I was to tell Ryan that his case against Peters for slander would not come on this term, and to suggest that he amend his declaration. You have not given the dates whereon the defendant called you a 'reptile' and a 'sneak.'"

"But I am not Ryan." "Is that so? That's too bad, but perhaps you can't help it. Was it your wife who eloped with a man named Blake?"

"Then you are not Mr. Clem. I was to tell him that he forgot to state the particu-lar time at which he first noticed a coldher demeanor. Let's see? Oh! there's that bigamy case. I was to say to the defendant that the prosecution appear to have hunted up and got hold of the tes-timony of a third female who claims to have married you in Toledo in 1864, and that your case looks shaky. We will, however, do our best to pull you through as we do all our clients."

"You are off again; I am not the man."

"Dear me, that's another. Well, all right. I was to say to any new client that Mr. would be back in an hour. Come in and sit down and look over the city directory. We will take your case at the lowest cash price and do our level best to win it. Consult no other firm until you have given use trie!" have given us a trial."

tained and the few fluctuations noted are of minor importance. There are some indications of a few days of the usual summer quietness, consequent upon the sultry weather at this season, but it can only be of a few day's duration, when it is believed that a heavy trade will again set in. Dry-goods dealers are generally engaged in their semi-annual invoke and are making some effort to force ginghams, lawns and other light fabrics upon the market so as to close them out. In other lines there is a fair movement, and some fall goods are sold to arrive. Groceries are sieady in all departments, and a fair inquiry is still reported. New canned goods are in the market and are selling well; in fact all canned goods show increased strength and meet with a good inquiry. Foreign fruits are strong and very active. Produce is steady in all departments, and is meving freely. Provisions are firmer, and the prospects are good for higher prices. The fron market is steady and firm. Flour is active and very firm at recently advanced prices.

work, and for brick walls it is the only reliable paint ever introduced that will effectually prevent dampness from penetrating and discoloring the plaster. On decayed shingles it fills up the pores and gives a new, substantial roof that lasts for years. Curled or warped shingles it brings to their places and keeps them there. Our Paint, which tur shingle roofs is chocolate color when first applied, soon changes to a unife m slate color, and is to all intents and purposes slate, and proof against burning embers, as can be essly tested. On tin roofs our red color is usually preferred, as one coat is equal to five of any ordinary paint. Having a large number of practical workmen, we will contract to paint and repair Leaky 7 in. RUBBER ROOFING.

Weight but 60 pounds to 100 square feet, and is the cheapest and lightest roof that can be put on. It can be laid by any one, and is superior to all other roofing for cheapness, fire-proof qualities and durability. Being ready gor use, very elastic, and requiring no tar or gravel, is strongly recommended by architects, corporations, public institutions, builders and leading men in all sections for new steep or flat roofs; can also be laid over yery old shingles, felt, plastic and mastic roofs, with positive satisfaction; will not smell in hot weather; sheds water rapidly; handsome finish; is as nearly fire-proof as it is possible to make any roofing, and is as durable as any tin roof under similar conditions.

We are prepared to take contracts for laying new roofs in any part of the country, or sell the materials. Send for circulars giving further particulars, prices, etc. Dr. J. S. Jordan's Lung Renovator,

DISSIPATION AND DEATH.

Samuel Conrad, of Eagletown, Hamilton County, Commits Suicide at Gates & Pray's Livery Stable. This morning, at half-past eleven o'clock, Samuel Conrad shot himsel' through the right temple, in a stall of Gates & Pray's livery stable, on the market space. Conrad came to the city from Eagletown, Hamilton county, Saturday evening, with a load of walnut logs, drawn by a weakerse team. He put up at Philing's stable on St. Clair street, near Delaware. A little twelve year old nephew was with him. Yesterday he sold his logs and began drinking heavily. Last evening he came to Gates & Pray's stable and slept last night in the haymow. The boy, distressed at his uncle's excesses, went home yesterday. This morning at half past ten o'clock while still suffering from the effects of his dissipation, Conrad met Mr. Gates and asked him to telegraph to his brother, Richard Conrad at Zionsville that he was suffering from an attack of "snakes."

Mr. Gates told him not to do that, but to go into a stall which was well littered down with hay and take a nap. This Conrad did, after taking his coat and boots off. In the course of half an hour a pistol shot was heard. Search being made for the cause of the shot, Conrad was found for the cause of the shot, Conrad was found lying at full length upon the hay stone dead, with a revolver in his right hand and a bullet hole in his temple, covered with blood which was still flowing. The body was at once carried into Kregelo's and placed in a coffin. Nothing was found upon his person except an empty pocket-book and some bullets. The dead man was apparently thirty-five years old, and it is thought he had a family, although he seems to have been an entire stranger in the city, no one at either of the stables at which he stepped knowing much stables at which he stapped knowing much of him. He was rather roughly dressed in clothes of a brown color, and wore a flannel shirt. He was strong and vigorous in appearance and rather good looking. His brother, Richard Conrad, is a prominent trader of Zionsville.

LATER—After considerable search a News reporter found a negro man who knew Conrad. He said the dead man leaves a wife and two children, and while leaves a wife and two children, and while Conrad was a shiftless man himself, his family is much respected throughout Ham-

THE DENTISTS.

Twenty-Second Annual Session of the State Association. The twenty-second annual session of the Indiana state dental association met in the Indiana state dental association met in the hall of the Ætna building this morning, at 10 o'clock. The association was called to order by Dr. Robert Van Valzah, of Terre Haute, president. There were present Drs. J. B. Brown, Fort Wayne; S. T. Kirk, Kokomo; M. H. Chappell, Knightstown, J. E. Church, Laporte; S. H. Bartholomew, Terre Haute: Joseph Bichardson, Terre Haute.

B. Morrison, William L. Heiskell, Indianapolis. A board of censors was apyointed, consisting of Drs. Cravens, Bartholomew and Church. The meeting then adjourned until this afternoon. The session will probably continue three days, and as a large number of papers of special interest to the association will be presented for consideration, the meeting will prove one of profit and importance. Among the subjects to be discussed are, "Mechanical dentistry," "Oral surgery," "Dental development," "Irregularities of teeth," "Operative dentistry," "pyorrhoea alveolaris" ative dentistry," "pyorrhoea alveolaris" and "zeparation of the teeth." In addiand "zeparation of the teeth." In addition notes of practice will be reported upon by all dentists in attendance. The members of the profession in the city will do the hospitable thing handsomely.

At the afternoon session the auditing committee reported a balance in the treasury of $90.28, and that the treasurer's accounts were correct. This evening the dentists will be entertained by the Indiana medical college and to-morrow evening an entertainment will be given by the local dentists in the hall of the association. A. C. Mrs. Cain's Will.

The will of Ann Eliza Cain was admitted to probate this morning. Samuel E. Perkins is named as executor: Her property is equally divided among her children, with specific bequests of personal property to a long list of relatives and decedents. The deceased was the wife of the late John Cain, a former postmaster of this city. She desires that $500 shall be expended for a family monument, and names a number of prominent gentlemen in the city who shall act as her pall bearers. She specifies that Bishop Talbot shall conduct the funeral service. In the matter of the specific bequests, In the matter of the specific bequests, which are not set down in the will, but left as instructions with her executor, the most minute care is taken to dispose of personal Boating on the canal continues to grow in popularity, and almost daily new boats are being launched. The latest addition is a fine light row boat of a new pattern, owned by Burt Dasher, George Dickson's trim craft called "Fun on the Bristol," and Ora Pearson and O. W. Williams's "light canoes." Henry Talbott and Homer June have each ordered paper sculls, and will have them in the water in a few days. Two or three new boat houses are being built, and a moonlight picnic is being arranged to take place at Golden Hill at an early date, when the large excursion steamer "Diana," will go up. A rowing match of a mile and repeat for a $50 purse will probably take place between two prominent oarsmen some time next week.

County Superintendents' Association.

The annual meeting of the county superintendents' association of the state opened at 2 o'clock this afternoon at the high school building. There is a large number of superintendents present, and they are a fine looking body of men. Among the most prominent are J. C. Macpherson, the president, superintendent of Wayne county: John M.
